

COUNTRY WATCH

Western Weekly:

11th October 2014

Colleagues,

With the nights drawing in there are more hours of darkness giving the criminals involved in rural criminal pursuits more time to go about their dastardly deeds. Please be extra vigilant and ensure you lock up your outbuildings before settling down for the night. Now would be an excellent time to review your security measures and ensure those outbuilding alarms are working and that your sheds are fitted with good quality padlocks, hasps, hinges and bolts. Maybe consider installing some basic CCTV and security lighting at your premises. If you require any advice with this Country Watch are here to help and can provide a site security visit which is, of course, free of charge.

This week Country Watch officers conducted an operation resulting in two males being arrested for poaching offences. The males are currently on police bail, further enquiries ongoing. One dog was seized from a suspect having been used in the offence. This time of year generally see's an increase in poaching and hare coursing activities. Please report any suspicious activity to police via 101 and try to get registration numbers of any vehicles involved and descriptions of people which would help us enormously. Country Watch are regularly conducting proactive operations in conjunction with local estates, wardens and game keepers to address this type of criminal activity.

Sussex Police have asked us to let our communities know that they recently recovered a large quantity of stolen garden equipment and power tools such as chainsaws, strimmers, hedge cutters, electric drills, etc. If you would like to check whether you recognise any of it you can log onto the Midhurst & Petworth Observer website www.midhurstandpetworth.co.uk/ and follow the link through to the Police Facebook picture gallery of recovered items. It may be worth a look if you have been the victim of crime as your stolen property will not necessarily remain local. A reminder that security marking your equipment can result in stolen items being returned to you much more quickly.

Another reminder for you to please sign up to Hampshire Alert – our new community messaging tool. You can do this by going to www.hampshirealert.co.uk and selecting the option to register and completing your details.

Thank you

Kind Regards

Debby Holman
Western Country Watch Sergeant
